SCIENCE AND SOCIETY (series)

Economics and action

by Pierre Mendès-France and Gabriel Ardan

In this account of the history and findings of economics the authors urge the reader to choose between blind empiricism and scientific planning, between unemployment and progress, between war and peace. They clearly indicate that the question is whether man will be able to mobilize for peaceful work the same resources that he can mobilize for war or the preparation of war, and they suggest the methods and technique for this mobilization.

THE RACE QUESTION IN MODERN SCIENCE (series)

Unesco has called upon outstanding anthropologists, sociologists, biologists and psychologists of international reputation to prepare a series of publications each dealing with a different aspect of the race question. These small volumes written for the layman are most effective in combating racial misconceptions, false theories and prejudices.

Race and culture

by Michel Leiris

44 p. $0.30 1/6 1 NF

The race concept: results of an inquiry

94 p. $0.85 4/- 2,50 NF
